Career Services

"The Center for Career Services is committed to the success of every Marist College student. We regularly collaborate with faculty and cultivate alumni connections to help students succeed in the global workplace. I believe it is essential to integrate Career Services with all aspects of the Marist College experience, including academic course selection, study abroad programs, college activities, residential life, and campus employment opportunities to ensure students have a holistic college experience with innumerable internship opportunities that lead to post-graduation success."

— Dr. Mary O. Jones, Executive Director,
Center for Career Services

*Data was compiled from the following sources: multiple online surveys, the Career Service Center, LinkedIn, National Clearinghouse, and through formal and informal conversations with graduates from the class of 2017. All outcome information is self-reported, and the percent employed includes both full- and part-time positions. Marist has outcome information on 85% of the graduating class. The employer and graduate programs listed reflect a sampling of outcomes from the 2017 classes. Marist provides an environment for success; however, it does not guarantee job placement or entrance/acceptance into graduate school.

Internships: 83% of students participated in one or more internships while at Marist and many credit them as a primary reason they were hired.

“The combination of technical and leadership skills that I learned to during my time at Marist have allowed me to advance my career in ways I would never have expected. If it were not for my professors, advisors, and fellow students, I would not be as outgoing and professional as I am today. I can undoubtedly credit my experience at Marist as the reason why I am employed at one of the best places to work in Information Technology.”

“Marist ignited a curiosity for subjects that I had never been exposed to because of passionate professors; it gave me friends that will last a lifetime because of the community that Marist fosters; it opened my eyes to the world through studying abroad and partaking in various internships. Every individual aspect of Marist prepared me for the future by giving me the right skills, the most supportive friends, and an optimistic attitude to be ready for each and every ‘next step’ I will have.”

"While studying Political Science at Marist, I fine-tuned my writing and analytical skills, and developed a diversified skill set that can be used in many different fields. It was here that my passion for global health and international humanitarian aid was first harnessed. My professors challenged me to open my mind to the world, while exposing me to countless academic, cultural, and professional development opportunities. Through the Center for Civic Engagement and Leadership, I gained invaluable knowledge about how to achieve great impact through education and community engagement while working in the nonprofit sector."

"The professors I had at Marist gave me new-found confidence as a student, researcher, and practitioner. They invested in me through supervision of my independent research projects and work as a teacher assistant, and pushed me to challenge myself in and out of the classroom. I was able to build close relationships with my professors, and I have continued to look to them for advice on my professional development after graduation."

"I fell in love with Marist the second I stepped on campus. Having extremely small class sizes for my major-related classes allowed my cohort and professors to become close-knit and my second family. Our professors went out of their way to integrate professional development into the curriculum. The combination of high level academics, a family atmosphere, and personal connections allowed me to secure a job before I walked across the stage at graduation."

Grants for Advanced Study

Marist College students have experienced increasing success in their applications for nationally competitive scholarships

Marist has been recognized by the Institute of International Education as a top producer of Fulbright Grant recipients

Over the past fifteen years, twenty-two Marist students have received Fulbright U.S. Student Program Grants to spend nine to eleven months abroad following graduation, either pursuing research or teaching English in another country. For two years in a row, Marist was recognized as a "Fulbright U.S. Student Program Top Producer" by the Institute of International Education. This recognition singles out U.S. institutions of higher education which have produced the greatest number of Fulbright Student Grant recipients in a given competition cycle. The distinction is published annually in The Chronicle of Higher Education.

Distinguished awards help to promote study of Science, Teaching, Study Abroad

In the last twelve years, six Marist students have been named Barry M. Goldwater Scholars for their undergraduate promise in scientific research; two students have received the National Science Foundation (NSF) Graduate Research Fellowship for doctoral study in the sciences; and one student was awarded the James Madison Memorial Fellowship supporting graduate studies for future secondary school teachers of U.S. History or government, and the sole recipient from New York State. Additionally, ten Marist students have received the Benjamin Gilman Scholarship for funding undergraduate studies abroad and a Marist sophomore was awarded the highly competitive U.S./U.K. Fulbright Summer Institute Grant to participate in a four-week summer intensive program at the University of Bristol.

Trend continues: six Marist students have been named semi-finalists in this year's Fulbright Student Grant competition, and two others have been shortlisted for the UK Fulbright Summer Institute Grant

Academic scholarship continues to take center stage at Marist: in addition to these developments, another Marist student was a finalist for the Charles B. Rangel International Fellowship, which focuses on careers in the U.S. Foreign Service.
